HUDSON "33"

The Hudson "33" is the latest creation of Howard E. Coffin, master builder of automobiles, and chief of the Hudson's department of engineering.

Mr. Coffin has probably designed and built more successful, famous, motor cars than any other man the industry has thus far produced. Each succeeding design has been a marvel of its time.

His cars have at once become the standard for other manufacturers. Still, with this noteworthy success, he has never produced a car that was a failure. So consistent has been his record for splendid achievement that it became natural for the trade to turn to his work as always the latest and most advanced step in automobile engineering. Mr. Coffin now devotes his time exclusively to the Hudson. His greatest work, we are told by competent critics, is found in the Hudson "33."

Many 1911 cars have been announced. With hardly an exception there has been any change from the previous year's models. "Perfection of details" is the common story told. But do you think that the year 1910 marked the perfection of the motor car?

The Hudson "33" stands out strongly, vividly in contrast. This car is different from anything ever produced. And yet the Hudson "33" upsets no principle of engineering. It complies absolutely, in every respect, with all proven successful practices of motor car construction.

It is simple, accessible, noiseless, powerful, staunch, and, like all of his designs, is beautiful, luxurious and comfortable. He builds his cars to meet actual requirements and usage on the road and in the simplicity of handling.

CHANCE SLIPPING AWAY.

Mexican Rebels Are Not Likely to Take Juarez.

Washington, Feb. 10.—The American consul at Juarez, reporting to the state department under Wednesday's date, declared that unless the Mexican insurgents took the city within a few hours they would have to give up the attempt, as their position afforded them no means of subsistence.

The revolutionists, the consul added, were fleeing back into the country for shelter. He said that conditions were less alarming and that with confidence restored business was becoming normal.

The railroads, he continued, expected to resume traffic within 48 hours.

WHEN THE BLOOD BECOMES THIN

Every Organ of the Body Is Weakened.

This Affords an Opportunity for the Development of Any Disease to Which the Patient May Have a Tendency.

Every organ in the body gets its nourishment from the blood. When the blood becomes thin and weak, the body is in a condition which doctors call "anemic." Every organ is weakened. Its power to fight off disease is reduced.

It is then that any disease which may be hereditary in the family of the patient has a chance to show itself. Sick headaches, stomach trouble and possibly rheumatism developed in the case of Mrs. George Osborne, of No. 70 Popular Avenue, Carbondale, Pa. She says:

"I was in an anemic condition for three years and became so broken down in health that I could walk only short distances when I would have to stop and rest. I had terrible sick headaches which lasted all day and night. I couldn't keep anything on my stomach, had a poor appetite and lost forty pounds in weight. There were sharp, cutting pains between the shoulders and in the back of the head. Every day I had nausea and often had dizzy spells. The doctor pronounced my trouble an anemia. I tried one medicine after another without doing any good so I at last decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. After a fair trial I saw they were giving me relief and used them until cured. I am in good health now and have no need for medicine."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are an almost certain blood-builder and as a remedy for anemic conditions will surprise by their marvelous results patients who have failed to regain health, strength and color by the use of other remedies. The pills have been found invaluable in a wide range of diseases of the blood and nerves, such as rheumatism, after-effects of the grip and fevers, neuritis, nervous debility, St. Vitus dance and even partial paralysis and locomotor ataxia.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y. Our booklet, "Diseases of the Blood," is free on request.

ST. PETERSBURG'S POISONING CASE

Alleged Employer of the Murderous Doctor Takes the Witness Stand in His Own Defence.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 10.—Count Patrick O'Brien de Laasy, accused of having hired Dr. Pantchenko to poison Count Vassili Bouturlin, was examined by the prosecution yesterday.

In his original confession, since repudiated, Pantchenko said he was under hypnotic influence of De Laasy when he killed the latter's brother-in-law.

In his own defense De Laasy declared that he was in no way concerned in Bouturlin's death. He admits that he engaged Pantchenko to commit an act of malpractice and says the correspondence of the subject was subsequently used by the doctor to blackmail him.

De Laasy said yesterday he was not present when the injections were given Bouturlin by Pantchenko, but visited the patient on the same day. He did not hear Bouturlin describe his sensations after treatment by Pantchenko, and asked no questions. The matter had no interest for him. He had visited the doctor's office on the day of the autopsy to destroy evidence of association with Pantchenko. If the latter really injected toxin in treating Bouturlin, the defendant did not know what the motives of the poisoner were.

"CRIMINAL MATCHES." A Single One of the Friction Variety Caused a $300,000 Fire.

Among the many incendiaries destroying the property of the American nation, none is more active than the criminal friction match. In Harrisburg, Pa., a short time ago, a friction match dropped on the floor of the cellar was stepped upon and resulted in a property loss of nearly $300,000.

Had this been a safety match instead of a "criminal" match no fire would have occurred. In many up-to-date European countries the "criminal" match which ignites on anything is outlawed and safety matches are required to be used exclusively.

Such a law in each of the states of the union should save to public and to the insurance companies millions of dollars annually. Three hundred thousand dollars is a high price to pay for one match, and friction matches are purchased every day in the year on that basis.

The property loss resulting from the "criminal" match unfortunately is only a small part of the damage done. Thousands of lives are lost; a whole army has been burned to death from the use of friction matches. Women with their flimsy gowns are often victims of matches that ignite from being stepped on. The universal use of safety matches would save thousands of lives and millions of dollars' worth of property.

Safety matches cannot be ignited by rats or mice, by being stepped on, by packages or boxes falling on the floor or by any one of the numerous ways in which "criminal" matches at present destroy life and property. If every public spirited citizen, including agents, managers, insurance commissioners and the press, would enlist in this cause it would mean increased safety for life and property. The "criminal" match should be legislated out of existence in every state of the union.—Insurance Engineering.

There is nothing like having one timepiece to correct the mistake of another. Those people who keep a clock in every room of the house will no doubt be glad to learn of the expedient adopted by the old colored janitor in an office building in Chicago. One day a man, whose office was under this janitor's charge, asked him if he had the exact time. "Just a moment, sir," he said, and pulled out a battered silver watch from a vest pocket, looked at it, put it back, and then took a pencil out of another pocket and jotted down something on the back of an envelope.

Next he produced a second silver watch from his trousers pocket, looked at it, and began to figure out something on the paper. By and by he said: "When you asked, sir, it was just 27 minutes past 3—that's exact."

"Much obliged," said the other, who had been fingering his watch nervously. "But will you please tell me what you were doing all that arithmetic for?"

"Why, you see," said the old man,

WHAT I WENT THROUGH

Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Natick, Mass.—"I cannot express what I went through during the change of life before I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was in such a nervous condition I could not keep still. My limbs were cold, I had creepy sensations, and I could not sleep nights. I was finally told by two physicians that I also had a tumor. I read one day of the wonderful cures made by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it, and it has made me a well woman. My neighbors and friends declare it had worked a miracle for me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is worth its weight in gold for women during this period of life. If it will help others you may publish my letter."—MRS. NATHAN E. GREASON, 51 N. Main Street, Natick, Mass.

The Change of Life is the most critical period of a woman's existence. Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you would like special advice about your case write a confidential letter to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

"this watch that I carry in my vest is a mighty good watch, only it gains ten minutes every day. And this one is a mighty good one, too, but it loses ten minutes every day. Now I just look at them both and then strike an average. You'd be surprised, sir, to see what a simple matter it is."—Youth's Companion.

A Clergyman Writes of His Struggle Against Neuresthenia.

A remarkable frank and interesting letter written by a clergyman to the editors of The American Magazine, which was prompted by a similar analytical avowal entitled "The Autobiography of a Neuresthenic," which appeared in the December issue of that periodical, is published with the writer's consent in the February number. The clergyman writes:

"I am finding tremendous help and I believe truly the ultimate conquest of all my troubles in auto-suggestion of a bolder type. I am saying to myself with the fervor of a conviction I am bound to possess, 'I am not nervous,' and this indeed makes me feel less nervous. Perhaps it is a lie, but it is to myself, and unlike all other lies, the more you say it, the less it becomes a lie."

"Our friend of the autobiography just entered upon the verge of the efficacy of auto-suggestion in using it to induce sleep. Probably had he followed it up further he might have found it yet more helpful. He says that if only he had been a man of religious faith his religion would, he thinks, have saved him from his mental troubles."

"Now, while I believe that religious faith can do a lot of things most important and vital to a man's welfare and deepest needs, its function scarcely lies in the realm of healing shattered nerves any more than in mending broken limbs. Its far-reaching visions and inner fountains of cheer help one to bear the misfortune of a broken leg as of all other ills mental and physical, but my conception of religious faith does not suffer it to be regarded as a patent medicine bound to cure in all cases of application, internal and external, if only you follow directions. But when the fear lest I should be nervous is the very thing that makes me nervous, I will substitute for it the assurance that I am not a potential victim and insist upon it, with all the convincing power I know, and that seems right and reasonable, a weapon, God-given, with which to defend myself."

"At the same time one must recognize the sanity and wisdom of the conclusion our legal confessor has arrived at—to take time for rest and recreation and not to feed the mind continuously with excitement and nerve-racking toil, as the stoker stokes the furnaces of the throbbing engine. And before closing my own confession I want to thank most heartily the autobiographer who in laying bare his own troubles helps some of the rest of us to feel the bond of kinship, to realize that we are not, after all, 'peculiar,' but that in life's far flung battle line we have our comrades who are fighting the same enemies of individual manhood's rights as we are, and with cheering success."

"It may not be amiss also to suggest the query as to whether a man who for the sake of his fellows spreads his own confession upon the printed page in such spirit of brotherhood as does our autobiographer is so entirely without religious faith as he supposes. Certainly his spirit of brotherhood has come of some one's else vision of fatherhood, if not of his own."

"Doctor's Daughter" SAYS

When You Purchase a Remedy—Demand Results.

In placing Stomach-Rite within the reach of the people, I have also given them the actual results accomplished by its use—the remarkable testimonials given me by people right here in Boston and all over New England. Stomach-Rite has cured so many, and every day in the year new people are writing to me in heartfelt gratitude, for what it has done for them. That others may know and benefit by their experience, they give me permission to publish their letters. Stomach-Rite is an honest remedy, honestly compounded, and its foundation is honest principles. When you purchase a remedy of any kind, demand just such results as I gladly give you—the names of reliable people of high standing right in your midst.

It is, Oh, so easy to declare the value of a remedy, but not so easy to prove it. Many remedies used for the relief of constipation and indigestion contain Salts and Castor Oil in some form, which may leave the user in a worse condition than before—more constipated—hence a continued use of it is necessary for a continued relief.

Read what the users of Stomach-Rite say—and demand actual proof of actual results.

Very truly yours,
Stomach-Rite

Two Wonderful Remedies.
Dear Doctor's Daughter: When I commenced to take your Stomach-Rite I was a complete wreck. The nerves of my stomach were all worn out. The first thing in the morning I would wake up with an awful sinking spell and think I was going to die—a tablet and I was all right. I had neurasthenia of the nerves and took your Blood Builder and Nerve Tonic and now feel like a new person. I can truly say they are both wonderful remedies and I recommend them to any one who is sick.

Yours truly,
MRS. W. H. BULLARD, Cambridge, Mass.

Dear Doctor's Daughter: I have been troubled for years with stomach trouble, and it finally developed into an abscess. The Stomach-Rite which I purchased from your agent, Dr. Dougherty, removed the abscess, and has cured all of my stomach trouble, so that now I can eat anything, and Stomach-Rite has done what doctors failed to do.

Respectfully yours,
C. E. CRANWELL, Bath, Me.

Dear Doctor's Daughter: I wish to tell you what the Stomach-Rite has done for me. I was very sick and confined to my bed with an attack of stomach trouble for three whole weeks. My doctor was coming every day, but I got no better. My suffering was intense when you gave my husband a few of your tablets to try. They relieved me at once. We immediately purchased a box and my suffering soon stopped and I was able to get up and dress. We would not be without them for anything. They have done for me what doctors failed to do. I have suffered with indigestion fifteen years and had to be careful what I ate, but I can now eat anything and it does not hurt me. My husband and I cannot say too much in praise of Stomach-Rite.

MRS. A. R. CARTER, Lewiston, Me.

Stomach-Rite can be obtained at the leading druggists 50c a box, and one 50c box will quickly convince the most sceptical what a wonderful remedy it is.

Worth trying, isn't it?
